

The Historie

That were his lackies: I cried hum, and well, go to, W. But mark him not a word: O, he is as tedious As a tyred horse, a railing wife, Worse then a smoky house: I had rather live With cheefe and garlike in a Windmill far, Then feede on cates, and hate him talke to me, In any summer-house in Christendome.

Mor. In faith he is a worthy Gentleman, Exceedingly well read and profited In strange concealments, valiant as a lion, And wondrous affable; and as bountifull As mines of India: shall I tell you, coosen, He holds your temper in a high respect, And curbs himselfe, even of his naturall scope, When you come crosse his humor, faith he does: I warrant you, that man is not aliue, Might so haue tempted him, as you haue done, Without the taste of danger and reproofe: But doe not vse it oft, let me intreat you.

Wor. In faith, my Lord, you are too wilfull blame, And since your comming hither haue done enough To put him quite beside his patience: You must needs learne, Lord, to amend this fault, Though sometimes it shew greatnesse, courage, bloud, And that's the dearest grace it renders you, Yet oftentimes it doth present harsh rage, Defect of maners, want of gouernment, Pride, hautinesse, opinion, and disdain, The least of which, hanging a noble man, Loseth mens hearts, and leaues behind a staine Vpon the beautie of all parts besides, Beguiling them of commendation.

Hot. Well, I am schoold, good maners be your speed, Here come our wiues, and let vs take our leaue.

Enter Glendower with the Ladies.

Mor. This is the deadly spight that angers me, My wife can speake no English, I no Welsh.

Glen. My daughter weepes, shee'le not part with you, Shee'le of Henry the fourth.

Shee'le be a souldier too, shee'le to the wars.
Mor. Good father tell her, that she, and my Aunt Percy

Shal follow in your conduct speedily.
Glendower speakes to her in Welsh, and she answeres him in the same.

Glen. Shee is desperate here, A peeuish selfe wilde harlotrie, one that no perswasion can doe good vpon.

The Ladie speakes in Welsh.

Mor. I vnderstand thy lookes, that prettie Welsh, Which thou powrest downe from these swelling heauens, I am too perfect in, and but for shame In such a parley should I answere thee.

The Lady againe in Welsh.

Mor. I vnderstand thy kisses, and thou mine, And that's a feeling disputation: But I will neuer be a truant loue, Till I haue learn'd thy language, for thy tongue Makes Welsh as sweet as ditties highly pend, Sung by a faire Queene in a summers bowre, With rauishing diuision to her Lute.

Glen. Nay, if you melt, then will she runne mad.

The Lady speakes againe in Welsh.

Mor. O, I am ignorance it selfe in this.

Glen. She bids you on the wanton rushes lay you downe, And rest your gentle head vpon her lap, And she will sing the song that pleaseth you, And on your eyelids crowne the God of sleepe, Charming your blood with pleasing heauinesse, Making such difference twixt wake and sleepe, As is the difference betwixt day and night, The houre before the heavenly harness teeme Begins his golden progresse in the East.

Mor. With all my heart, ile sit and heare her sing, By that time will our booke I thinke be drawne.

Glen. Do so, and those musiciens that shall play to you, Hang in the aire a thousand leagues from hence, And straight they shall be here, sit and attend.
